Story:

First and foremost, the reason for my participation in this contest is purely for the purpose of embracing humanity and kindness among human being. Well, it all begins with my normal routine of walking around my residential area in a quiet and peaceful evening on Saturday, 5th November 2020.

I saw a young lady with an umbrella standby by a Proton Saga with her car hood wide open, stranded by the roadside. She looked anxious and restless. Judging by her look, she may not be from this area. My first guess was that she might have had some issues with her car and I continued walking slowly towards her.

Out of a sudden, a blue car drove passed towards the parking area. Surprisingly, the owner of the vehicle stopped half way through and reversed her car towards the lady with the umbrella.

An athletic young lady got out of the and greeted the lady with the umbrella and it seems that she's willing to offer her a helping and. From what I have been told, the temperature of the car suddenly went up and the owner of the Proton Saga does not have any coolant or spare water to refill the "tank".

However, miracle happened as the athletic lady (coincidentally her name is also Tina) happened to have a big bottle of mineral water in her car boot. I was touched by the act of kindness portrayed by Tina as the big bottle is actually a brand new mineral water that she bought for drinking. Yet, she's willing to help an unknown stranger for the sake of humanity.

I was so relieved as I imagined that if there were no Tina, the lady with the umbrella will be doomed as the area is secluded, and if I were to help her, I may not be as useful as I've emptied my water bottle earlier.

I know, some of you may not find this as genuinely heroic as it is common, "a lady with a stranded car". However, take a moment to pause and ponder, are you willing to act the same as Tina? Are you willing to stop your car just for the sake of helping an unknown woman in an empty area? Put your feet in her shoes, then you will know how we can actually change the world by one random act of kindness. Spread the love.
